

As part of the administrative Aliyah process, you must present a letter stating your eligibility status. This letter must meet strict conditions. Read the following instructions carefully and make sure that the letter fulfills all the conditions.

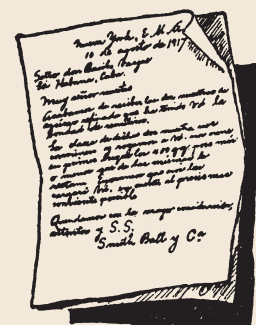

What You Will Need:

Letter Stating Eligibility

This letter must:

- be written on community letterhead
- be written in Hebrew, English, French, Russian, Portuguese or Spanish
- be signed by the rabbi of the community in your country or, in his absence, by the president and two other members of the board of directors (digital signature is not accepted)
- include the stamp of the rabbi or synagogue
- clearly state your identification and status:
 - a) Jewish by birth: state the mother's full name
 - b) Child of a Jewish father: state the full name of the father and paternal grandmother
 - c) Grandchild of a Jewish grandfather: state the full name of the grandfather and your parent
 - d) Converted: state the rabbinical court and year of conversion

Conversion

If you converted, the following additional documents are required:

- a letter of intent explaining why you converted and how the process was (in Hebrew or English)
- proof of attendance to the giyur classes
- a certificate of conversion, signed by the Beit Din
- letters proving participation in the community (at the time of conversion and currently)

Conversion in Israel

If you converted through the Israeli Rabbanut, only the following documents are required:

- Teudat Hamara/Gerut (Conversion Certificate)
- If relevant: Teudat Nissuin (Marriage Certificate)

Important Notes:

No Alternative Document

Please note that the Ketubah or Brit Milah certificate cannot replace this document!
